

Since 2012, Heather has worked for ChiroHealthUSA, the network that works for chiropractic. She started her chiropractic journey as the first voice you heard when calling the CHUSA office. In a few short months, her spunky personality had her travelling to seminars where her passion to help the profession took off. She is now a Network Specialist helping doctors and their teams with the struggles of setting their discounts and implementing the network successfully. Her no holds bar approach has been effective in helping thousands of chiropractic teams overcome their biggest challenges while generating the single largest amount of fan mail at the ChiroHealthUSA office. Heather will tell you like it is which will leave you hanging on to her every word.
